WARMENHOVEN AMARYLLIS THE WORLD'S MOST TREASURED WINTER-FLOWERING PLANT

That sounds like over-praise, but in this instance — well, it's true, for so many of the nearly 25,000 people who have bought them since 1951 have written us so ecstatically that it is downright convincing. Warmenhoven Amaryllis is not a fleeting gift; with a little care these plants go on flowering year after year, bulbs get bigger and bigger, produce more and more flowers — yes, they do. See the back of this letter, please.

These Amaryllis are the product of the House of Warmenhoven, a fine Dutch nursery, which has been hybridizing Amaryllis for over seventy years, and which has brought this Amaryllis strain to its present beauty. Colors are warm and clear; they have iridescence. Blooms are huge, from six to eight inches in diameter, from two to six of them on one flowering stalk, and many of the bulbs throw two stalks the first season.

As Christmas gifts Warmenhoven Amaryllis are ideal for those people who have everything; Amaryllis are neither too little nor too much for anyone. When blooms appear from six to ten weeks after Christmas, you'll get second letters of thanks, right long ones. Shipments start in November. We ship only the largest bulbs neatly potted, ready to grow, and with complete cultural instructions. Every plant is guaranteed to bloom the first year, or we will replace it without charge or return your money. That's quite a guarantee.

This notice is sent well in advance of our national advertising in The New Yorker. If you place your order now, the chances are very good that you will get the color you first select. However, at this time we do not know exactly how many bulbs of each color will be received (some colors invariably are in shorter supply than others). So please be sure to indicate at least a second color choice — a third choice is desirable, as our guarantee applies to bloom, not color. We will confirm orders immediately.

Colors of Warmenhoven Amaryllis are pure White, and shades of Dark Red, Lighter Red, Scarlet, Pink, Salmon, Rose, and Rose and White (a blend). Prices, $5.95 each, potted; $4.95, unpotted. Postage is free East of the Rocky Mountains, including Texas; for Florida and West of the Rockies, please add 50¢ to help defray additional postage. All shipments are insured at no additional cost.

Named hybrid Warmenhoven Amaryllis are extremely rare and should only (repeat only) be purchased for very advanced gardeners or fanciers. They are $15.00 each, potted; $14.00 each, unpotted. Postage as above. Supply very limited. Please be sure to enclose your gift cards with each order. And a Merry Christmas to you.—A. Pettingill.

NOTE: Please do not send Amaryllis to those who live in sunless city apartments. Amaryllis need a sunny window to grow in or they get too tall. Clivia, a rather rare member of the Amaryllis family (it has up to 20 or more delightful reddish-shaded yellow lily-shaped blossoms on each flowering stalk), is the ideal house plant for north light. Clivia hates direct sun. Strangely, it likes the heat of city apartments. The plant blooms in late February (sometimes as late as April). Clivia is a permanent house plant; its leaves stay a very dark leathery green all year and offsets produce large compound plants in a few years. We have a very small stock of four to five year old plants. They are shipped in full leaf, specially potted and packed, postage as above, each $9.95. Each plant is guaranteed to bloom. (Clivia are NOT shipped bareroot.) These Belgian imports do not arrive until late November, sometimes later. If we can't get Clivia to giftees in time for Christmas, we will send a greeting card of notification.—A. P.

My dear Mr. Vettingill,

Your amaryllis have given us such pleasure. I thought you might like to hear about them. The older one has bloomed each year — four years. This year we had four splendid blooms just at Christmas time. The other, a white one, is not so old. This year it has two flower stalks, each blooming.

We have a sunny window for them but their care has been normal and simple, merely following your directions about potting and feeding, rather a blow as I cannot even pride myself on a green, green thumb.

Thank you so much for these pleasures and for the thought and care you must use in choosing and sending your stock.

Sincerely yours,

Charlotte B. Griswold
